Laragh

Laragh is right in the heart of the Uplands. This plus its close proximity to Glendalough make it a lively and busy village. Heading south-west from Laragh along the Military Road will take you to Glenmalure (Drumgoff).

Glenmalure Valley

Glenmalure (also referred to as Drumgoff in many publications) is situated in a hamlet, which extends along the Glenmalure valley floor. Walkers will be well rewarded by the possibilities for one-day treks to the many high peaks, which surround the wonderful Glenmalure valley, including Lugnaquilla - at 925m the highest mountain in Wicklow.

Glendalough

The Glen of the Two Lakes - is a valley celebrated for its beauty as well as its historical and archaeological interest. As most of Glendalough lies within the boundaries of the Wicklow Mountains National Park, there are numerous walks and sign-posted trails in the area ranging from 2kms to 11kms in length.

Iron Bridge

The Iron Bridge is a well-known landmark on the Wicklow Way walking trail. Situated between Glenmalure (Drumgoff) & Tinahely it is a favoured 'break point' along the trail.

Tinahely Village

Located in the south of County Wicklow, Tinahely village is a vibrant little oasis of shops, pubs, eateries & accommodation. Walkers are spoiled for choice here with three local Loop walks and access to the 'Wicklow Way' where walkers can head south to the beginning of the trail at Clonegal or north towards Moyne, and on to Glenmalure & Glendalough.
